Governor Risto Ryti,
Finlands Bank,
Helsingfors.

Dear Governor:

I enclose herewith copy of a letter of introduction which I have given to Congressman Tinkham, member for Massachusetts of the House of Representatives of the United States Congress, which is self-explanatory.

I will merely add, for your personal information, that one of the peculiarities of the Congressman is that he walks around so badly dressed that your assistants may not even let him in to see you, although he is a very wealthy man.

He knows thoroughly our political situation, and because of his more than 20 years of membership in Congress he knows intimately all our men in public life and the sentiment about various current topics. He has made a thorough study of currency questions, and has conferred with our best minds, and as a result he has come to certain very definite conclusions which may interest you very much, and I therefore believe it will be useful for you to see him.

Believe me, dear Governor,

Very sincerely yours,

Henry Mann

Governor Risto Ryti,
Finlands Bank,
Helsingfors.

Dear Governor:

This letter serves to introduce Mr. George Tinkham, member for Massachusetts of the House of Representatives of the United States Congress, who is visiting Helsingfors, and to whom I have suggested that he call on you.

Congressman Tinkham has been a member of Congress without interruption for more than 20 years. He has travelled all over the world, and he is a keen student, not only of history, but of economic affairs of to-day. He is again on a trip studying world conditions, which will embrace Europe, Russia, Manchukuo and Japan, and I am sure you will enjoy meeting him and talking to him about economic conditions. He is one of the best-informed men, and I think it will be distinctly useful for you to talk with him about currency questions.

Any courtesy that you may be able to extend to Congressman Tinkham will be thoroughly appreciated.

Believe me, dear Governor,

Sincerely yours,

(sgd.) Henry Mann
